ABSTRACT

Process steps from the step of judging whether or not data transfer at a target has been completed to the step of transferring status information to a host are automated. When an error is generated, the generation of the error is notified to an external control unit and the external control unit which has received the notification performs proper error processing.